MISCELLANEOUS.

Is Life Worth Living?

That depends upon the Liver. If the Liver is inactive the whole system is out of order—the breath is bad, digestion poor, head dull or aching, energy and hopefulness gone, the spirit is depressed, a heavy weight exists after eating, with general despondency and the blues. The Liver is the housekeeper of the health; and a harmless, simple remedy that acts like Nature, does not constipate afterwards or require constant taking, does not interfere with business or pleasure during its use, makes Simmons Liver Regulator a medical perfection.

I have tested its virtues personally, and know that for Dyspepsia, Biliousness and Throbbing Headache, it is the best medicine the world ever saw. Have tried forty other remedies before Simmons Liver Regulator, and none of them gave more than temporary relief, but the Regulator not only relieved but cured.

A VIOLET SPEAKS.

O passerby, draw near!
Upon a grave I grow;
That she who died was dear
They planted me to show.

Pluck me as you go by—
I am her messenger;
With her sweet breath I sigh;
In me her pulses stir.

Through these my quivering leaves
She fain would speak to you—
She whom the grave bereaves
Of the dear life she knew.

"How glad I was up there!"
She whispers underground,
"Have they who found me fair
Some other fair one found?

"Has he who loved me best
Learned love's deep lore again,
Since I was laid to rest
Far from the world of men?

"Nay! Surely he will come
To dwell here at the last;
In Death's strange silent home
My hand shall hold him fast.

"Yet would that he might know
How hard it is to bide
In darkness here below
And miss him from my side!

"Fain would I send my soul
To lie upon his breast
And breathe to him love's whole

Ah, pluck me, passerby!
For I would bear her breath—
Undying love's own sigh—
To him who flees from death.

—Louise Chandler Moulton in Harper's.

MISS MARY'S SECRET.

Miss Mary Jones was an old maid. What causes had led to that result it boots not here to say, but the fact remains that she was a spinster of the mature age of 60 years. But "mature" was never the right word to apply to Miss Mary. She seemed always immature. From her teens she had been docile, pliant and easily led, and now at 60 she still seemed hardly grown up. She was still pretty, even dainty to look at. Her snow white hair was arranged as deftly as it had been at 16, and she blushed as readily now as then.

Miss Mary Jones lived in a suburb with only one servant, older than herself—Betsy Mills. Miss Mary was, so report said, the daughter of a sea captain and had been "brought up for a lady," but nobody knew much more of her than this. Betsy Mills was close, and Miss Mary was not given to gossip, but as the local parlance went "kept herself to herself."

The two women lived in one of those ugly little 4-roomed, semi detached "villa residences" which abound in unfashionable suburbs, with an uninviting looking strip of lawn and oyster shells in front and an equally unpleasant slug ridden plot behind. But Miss Mary, who was fond of gardening, had trained a pretty yellow jessamine over the rickety porch, and she liked the oyster shells because "they reminded her of the sea."

Betsy Mills, a hard featured, tall old woman, as lean as a scarecrow, though she was hard as adamant to every one else, rarely spoke otherwise than softly to her mistress. She humored her fads, respected her weaknesses and never scolded her except when necessary. "Miss Mary" she always called her, with almost a tender inflection in her voice, and hence the neighbors also never spoke of her as anything else than "Miss Mary."

Miss Mary was charitable to a fault. Her house was a very refuge of the destitute. To it flocked all the beggars and imposters in the neighborhood, sure of relief. No tale was too feeble, no story too disjointed, to impose upon this tender hearted old lady. Betsy, who saw through everything, and who was made of material as stern as Miss Mary's was soft, regarded herself as a shield interposed by heaven to protect her mistress, who would otherwise long ago have flung her whole substance to a crowd of greedy beggars. But even she could not prevent Miss Mary's continual raids on the scanty larder.

"Ye'd leave nothing at all for yerself," she grumbled, "if I didn't look after yer like a mother and be for ever at yer back."

Miss Mary would occasionally pick up lost children whom she found crying in the streets and bring them home, to Betsy's indignation and her own confusion, for they would generally sit crying after the manner of lost children and refuse to eat until called for by their parents. Through this same charitable officiousness Miss Mary once found herself in the position of nearly having a parish baby saddled upon her altogether, but this Betsy refused to allow, putting her foot down firmly for once. "She ain't nothing but a baby herself, bless yer, sir," she informed the police sergeant on that memorable occasion. But the fact was Miss Mary had a softer heart even than usual where children were concerned.

"Oh, Betsy!" she said, hurrying up to her "mentor" with tears in her eyes, "here's a poor woman come to the door with matches. She's got a drunken husband and 16 children—one of them a triplet—all of tender age."

"Sixteen, has she? Ah! that's one thing they can all 'ave," grumbled Betsy, unmoved, as she wended her way up stairs with her broom.

There was a diplomacy in Betsy's departure. If Miss Mary would give away the poor contents of the larder again, let her not be there to see. A set of greedy, grasping wretches! Mutinous, she seized the broom with vigor and began to sweep her mistress' bedroom. It was a plain, unpretending little room enough, everything neat, but very old, the paint worn off everywhere, but scrupulously tidy and old maidish, with a sort of character of its own that bore no relation to Mrs. Panton.

The bed, covered with a scanty blue cotton quilt, had hung over it an antiquated engraving of Raphael's "St. Catherine." In the small bookcase were a worn Testament and the poems of Tennyson and of Byron, a faded blue satin marker inside the latter, while on the mantelpiece were curious Indian shells, such as children love to listen to, and a photograph, yellowed with age, of a handsome young fellow in naval uniform. Over this was pinned a bunch of white everlastings.

Betsy took up the photograph and dusted it tenderly, laying it back with a sigh. She guessed her mistress' sorrow of bygone years, and, though she herself had no sympathy with such things, yet, by a strange concatenation of ideas, this knowledge made her more than ever tender with Miss Mary now. "Poor soul! poor soul!" she murmured to herself, as faint sounds proceeded from the kitchen, and Miss Mary's kind voice alternated with profuse thanks from the mother of the 16 infants and the triplet.

Yes, Miss Mary had a romance—a tenderly cherished, well nurtured romance, which was at once her delight and her woe, and which grew but stronger as the years wore on. At 20 she had loved a sailor lad, a handsome young naval lieutenant, who had gone out to the West Indies and had never returned. There had been a sort of tacit engagement. At any rate Miss Mary had given away her whole heart—so much so that she had never had any of it to spare for the suitors who came after. Stories indeed reached her from time to time about her love. People said he had been wild. Some even hinted that he had deserted her. Miss Mary, in her fond loyalty, refused to believe these tales and clung, with a quivering lip, to the idea of his early death.

"Or if he be wandering about the world somewhere," she said once, in a burst of unwonted confidence to Betsy, "he may perhaps come back one day."

"Why, you wouldn't know him after all these years, even if he was alive," said Betsy.

"Know him! Of course I should," said Miss Mary. "He will find me in the old place—he will know where to come. So, dear Betsy, leave the door always open."

But this Betsy firmly declined to do. She was "not going to risk having her wits frightened out of her by thieves," she declared, "whatever Miss Mary might say or do." So she drew the line at the garden gate and always left that unfastened. If this ill advised proceeding give tramps admittance into the tool house or coal cellar, why, what matter? "They was Miss Mary's coals. She might do as she liked." Sometimes destitute old ladies would use the coal cellar as a kind of casual ward and condescend to spend a night there, leaving the remains of their breakfasts and a few of their rags as presents behind them. Betsy bore it all uncomplainingly, knowing what "Miss Mary's trouble" had been.

"It was a mercy," she thought to herself, "that it didn't take her in no other way."

But to Miss Mary herself the "trouble" in course of years became almost a joy. It faded from a blood red intensity to a roseate afterglow. She hugged herself, so to speak, with the recollection of what had been. Her youthful lover became brighter, fairer, dearer even than ever he had been in the faraway reality. She envied not the lot of other women with husbands, babies, grown up sons. Their life partners were commonplace as compared with hers, glorified into the regions of romance, "orbed into the perfect star" of 40 years ago.

"He was brave, handsome, chivalrous," she would say to herself, mentally comparing her lover of former years with Mrs. Brown's burly coal merchant or Mrs. Minn's drunken boor.

And as for other women's babies, their charms also paled by contrast with Miss Mary's "dream children." The fond maternal feeling that is the basis of every true woman's life found its echo even here, and the little old lady's imaginary darlings helped to make her days less empty. "My boy Claude would have been just 25, my daughter Emmeline just 20, and how like her father!" she would murmur when in the glimmering twilight she would imagine these treasures beside her, in the land of what "might have been." But Miss Mary's elation was all for the solitude of her own heart. Like her namesake of old, she hid all these things. Only Betsy knew or guessed at a quarter of her poor old mistress' fancies.

Time wore on, and it seemed as if nothing would occur to disturb the even tenor of the two solitary women's lives—that they would go down to the grave in an uneventful and peaceful silence. But fate willed otherwise. One night—it was in early autumn—Miss Mary was aroused at 9 o'clock by a loud knocking at the outer door. It was Sunday night, and she was alone in the house. The faithful Betsy had gone to her Primitive Methodists, and Miss Mary, who had been ailing of late with a cough, had not attended her usual Sunday evening service at church. The loud knocking startled her, as we said—she was a nervous soul—and she opened the door timidly. A rough looking man stood there, his gaunt figure showing black against the moonlight.

"For God's sake hide me here for a few minutes," he pleaded hoarsely, "till the police have gone by. Let me in, or, by heaven, I may as well throw up the game!"

Miss Mary's heart thumped loudly. The police! For, all her charitableness, she had drawn the line hitherto at thieves. But the man's face was white, and she heard a clattering of feet down the road—probably the police. Betsy, the guardian angel, was out of the way—humanity, as usual, won over prudence—Miss Mary opened the door.

"You may lie on these rugs in the kitchen," she said to him kindly, "and tomorrow I will bring you some breakfast if you will go away early before my servant gets up."

The man murmured incoherent thanks. Miss Mary, being nervous, forbore to look at him and retired to her own apartment, not without some qualms of conscience. Betsy, who came in later with the latch key from chapel, suspected nothing, but Miss Mary's evil fate willed that toward the small hours of the morning she should wake up hungry. Being a frail, timid old lady, she slept lightly, and now, remembering that the biscuits were down stairs on the dining room sideboard, she wandered down stairs in search of them.

She had forgotten for the moment all about her last night's visitor and slipped down as noiselessly as a mouse. But what was her horror to see by the faint morning light at the half open dining room door a figure moving? Miss Mary, as she stifled a shriek, recognized the man she had befriended. He was holding her silver teapot up to the light and inspecting it carefully—the same silver teapot bought by its owner during her brief period of happiness 40 years ago. She had invested her savings in it prior to her expected marriage.

"What, would you rob me?" thought Miss Mary, and her heart waxed fierce.

Rob her, who had so long befriended the needy and the destitute! But, like Bishop Myriel with his silver candlesticks, her anger was of short duration. She would let the man go. Probably he needed the silver more than she, and so strange are the workings of the human mind that she remembered, even in that moment of fear, how her mother had always said that brown fourpenny teapots made the best tea.

She was still standing spellbound, afraid to move, when the man happened to turn his head, and the light fell full on to his face. It was only an old man's face, worn, gaunt, surrounded by grizzled hair and beard and marked by sin and crime with something perhaps, as many criminals' faces have, that seemed to recall better days—

In the morning light his face for a moment
Seemed to assume once more the forms of its earlier manhood.

Miss Mary looked, looked again, and like Phineus of old with the Medusa's head she seemed to turn to stone. Then her legs tottered under her, the dawn became black before her eyes, and she fell down on the rickety stairs in a dead faint.

Betsy, coming cautiously down stairs a few hours later and preparing to scold her mistress for forgetting to fasten the shutters, nearly tripped over a little fragile, shriveled heap, cold and unconscious, wrapped in its well known darned dressing gown.

Miss Mary recovered with Betsy's loving care. Her visitor of last night had made himself scarce, and whether startled by the noise of Miss Mary's fall or by a few rays of lingering grace in his own conscience had left the precious silver teapot. So beyond saying that she had a fright last night and being reprimanded for not putting the teapot away nothing further, to all appearance at least, resulted to Miss Mary.

But the bright old lady faded and became older from that day. Her step sounded less alert, her voice less brisk. The children in the streets scarcely recognized their benefactress; she seemed to have lost the joy of life. Betsy was in despair. She alternately coaxed and scolded her darling.

"Do you want to die," she complained, "an leave yer poor old Betsy? You can 'ave the kitchen brimful o' tramps, my sweet, if you'll only git well an laugh again."

Miss Mary looked at her sadly.

"No," she said, "Betsy don't want me to live. I'm sorry to leave you, dear, but it seems as if something had gone here," pointing to her heart with a pathetic gesture. "Something seems to have snapped inside me. Life doesn't seem the same to me any more now. I don't know how it is."

Miss Mary did not know, but it had only happened to her as it happens to many. She had lost her romance—the love story which had been the life of her life was gone.

It had for so long been a part of her, entwined with her very being, that, like the ivy parasite with the oak, it had involved in its destruction the life beneath it.

Miss Mary sickened and died, the local physician said of languor. Not even old Betsy Mills, who mourned for her more than the children and the beggars themselves, could have guessed at another reason.—Exchange.

AMERICA TO BE RULED BY AMERICANS.

The decision of the United States Supreme Court rendered last Monday affirming the constitutionality of the Geary Chinese Act was received with great rejoicing in all of the Pacific Coast States and Territories where the alien race are best known.

To American people all over the Union this decision meant something more than the deportation of a very undesirable element in our midst. It meant that America is to be ruled by the Congress of the United States, who are the People, and not by the Six Chinese Companies backed up by the Emperor of the "Flowery Kingdom."

For the first time in a long while has our Government stood on its dignity as a nation and proclaimed to the world that we still possess national pride sufficient to enforce the laws of our own country. Owing to a weak and vacillating policy pursued by our Government in the past few years toward foreign powers the American Government was looked upon by the Six Chinese Companies as being afraid to make laws that would in any wise incur the displeasure of a foreign nation. To a certain extent the Chinese were encouraged in this idea by the action of President Cleveland in refusing to recognize the Geary Act until its constitutionality was passed upon by the Supreme Court, which really has no business to meddle with the acts of Congress, which is the law-making power of the land.

The Congress by passing the Geary Act and the United States Supreme Court in upholding it has redeemed the nation and every true American can now go forth with head erect feeling that our country is not the laughing stock of other nations, particularly in so far as this Chinese business is concerned.

MUST HANG.

The long-looked-for decision of the United States Supreme Court in the McNulty case was rendered last Monday. The Court in its decision refused to interfere with the decree of the lower court and the death penalty must be enforced unless the Governor commutes McNulty's sentence. The decision also affects Bruggy, Vincent and other men under sentence of death in this State. There is hardly a doubt in the minds of any one but what Vincent who assassinated his wife in Fresno county in a brutal and cowardly manner, and Bruggy, who killed Louison in this county in cold blood, ought to suffer the extreme penalty of the law. With McNulty the feeling is altogether different. He was an honest, hard-working man and did not belong to the criminal element, and it is the opinion of thousands in this State that he was convicted on perjured testimony. He claimed to have been attacked by the man whom he shot on the city front of San Francisco and killed him in self defense. The chances are that his sentence will be commuted and that the others will hang.

DR. PRICE'S BAKING POWDER.

Supplying the Army, Navy and Indian Department.

Chicago Inter-Ocean.

The purchasing agents of the United States Government have ordered nearly one hundred thousand pounds of Dr. Price's Baking Powder in the first five months of this year.

The government exercises great care in selecting its spuplies of all kinds, rejecting everything that is not the best, and the very fact that it has adopted Dr. Price's Baking Powder is proof that it has found it the best of all the baking powders. Dr. Price's is peculiarly adapted for export, as neither long sea voyages nor climate changes affect it, this brand keeping fresh and sweet for years while other baking powders deteriorate rapidly.

It is guaranteed to the government to be a pure cream of tartar powder free from ammonia, alum, or other harmful substances, and it is also the only baking powder prepared by a physician of high standing.

California Wines in Europe.

California wine will soon be introduced in Europeon countries by this Government. Within a short period Special Agent Murphy, who has represented this country abroad in introducing American corn, will return to London, accompanied by State Senator Mettes of Nebraska, to open a branch of the United States Department of Agriculture, to exhibit corn products and California wine. This information comes from Secretary Morton of the Department of Agriculture. The exact plans to be followed have not been fully determined upon, but the Golden State is sure to get a great deal of advertising in foreign climes by this arrangement.

Colonel Murphy says: "All the wine consumed in the northern countries of Europe has to come from France, Spain, Italy and certain parts of Germany, and no doubt for many years to come these people may excel us in the manufacture of the highest priced wines, but for wines of a comparatively moderate price we can already rival the manufacturers of Southern Europe in quality, and I am quite sure that we can lay them down in the ports of Northern Europe at a cost which will enable us to rival them in price."

"Considering the cheapness of ocean transportation and extraordinary excellence of our fruits, such as California and Florida oranges, prunes, figs and raisins, than which no better are raised anywhere in the world than California, I am satisfied that we can secure a good market for these products, also in the face of the competition of the Mediterranean countries. I think if the Secretary of Agriculture were empowered to establish a European bureau for the introduction of American agricultural products a very great deal of good could be accomplished."

A Frightful Accident.

William Orr has received a letter from his brother, Chas. Orr, reciting the facts of a frightful accident which happened at Duncan's Mills on Thursday. A child of John B. DeCarty, four years of age, was playing upon the street Thursday afternoon. The child in some way obtained a bunch of matches which she was lighting, and from these her clothing was set on fire. Mr. DeCarty tried in every way to extinguish the flames, in so doing his hands were burned to a crisp. The flames, however, had accomplished their work and after lingering four hours in excruciating agony the child died. Mrs. DeCarty was also burned very badly in her efforts to save her child. The sympathy of the entire community is extended to the bereaved parents.—Santa Rosa Democrat.

How to Thin out Peaches and Apricots.

The following timely article on the thinning out of the peach and apricot, is taken from the Rural Press:

The work of thinning peaches and apricots should begin just as soon as the fruit can be easily seen. There is a tendency among orchardists to delay the beginning of this work from a fear that something may happen to cause some of the fruit to drop; but it will not pay to give way to this tendency. Begin to thin as soon as you can. Always aim to finish before the pits begin to harden. All imperfect or double fruit should be picked off with a ruthless hand. The best way to proceed to the work is to pick off a strip from the bottom to the top of the tree on one side, and then work around to the place of beginning.

Apricots should be left from four to six inches apart on good healthy trees in good soil.

Peaches ought to be thinned according to condition of tree, to four to six and six to eight inches apart, the latter rule being better than the former. The best is to take a good look at the tree and determine in your mind how many pounds you think it will carry to the best developed maturity without breaking the limbs. After the first thinning it will nearly always pay to go over the trees a second time after the fruit gets larger.

Peach trees from 5½ to 6½ years old should carry from 200 to 250 pounds of matured peaches. These at 1½ cent a pound will bring $3 to $4 to the tree, or from $300 to $400 to the acre.

"I feel that it is impossible for me to say too much in favor of Hood's Sarsaparilla. I was a great sufferer from impure blood and Catarrh in my head. Job's comforters failed to comfort me, and I suffered from numerous boils

Agony Beyond Description.

When I began to take Hood's Sarsaparilla I had six of them, only four of which came to a head, and since then, thanks to this good medicine, I have been free from this great affliction. I gained 11 pounds in three weeks. The Catarrh in my head which has troubled me for years has also been cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla and I

A Million Friends.

A friend in need is a friend indeed, and not less than one million people have found just such a friend in Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds.—If you have never used this Great Cough Medicine, one trial will convince you that it has wonderful curative powers in all diseases of the Throat, Chest and Lungs. Each bottle is guaranteed to do all that is claimed or the money will be refunded. Trial bottles free at Ed. Wegner's Drug Store.

Deserving Praise.

We desire to say to our citizens, that for years we have been selling Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Dr. King's New Life Pills, Bucklen's Arnica Salve and Electric Bitters, and have never handled remedies that sell as well, or that have given such universal satisfaction. We do not hesitate to guarantee them every time, and we stand ready to refund the purchase price, if satisfactory results do not follow their use. These remedies have won their great popularity purely on their merits.

HEART DISEASE 30 YEARS.

GRAND ISLAND, NEB., April 8th, 1892.

Dr. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind.

GENTLEMEN: I had been troubled with HEART DISEASE FOR THE LAST 30 YEARS, and although I was treated by able physicians and tried many remedies, I grew steadily worse until I WAS COMPLETELY PROSTRATED AND CONFINED TO MY BED WITHOUT ANY HOPE OF RECOVERY. I would have very bad sinking spells, when my pulse would stop beating altogether, and it was with the greatest difficulty that my circulation could be started, which would bring me back to consciousness again. While in this condition I tried your NEW HEART CURE, and began to improve from the first, and now I am able to do a good day's work for a man 63 years of age. I give DR. MILES' NEW HEART CURE all the credit for my recovery. It is over six months since I have taken any, although I keep a bottle in the house in case I should need it. I have also used your NERVE AND LIVER PILLS, and think a great deal of them.

Order of Adjudication of Insolvency.

In the Superior Court of the State of California, in and for the County of Sonoma.

In the matter of T. N. Murphy, an insolvent debtor.

T. N. MURPHY HAVING FILED IN this Court his petition, schedule and inventory in Insolvency, from which it appears he is an Insolvent Debtor, the said T. N. Murphy is hereby declared to be insolvent. The Sheriff of the county of Sonoma is hereby directed to take possession of all the estate, real and personal, of the said T. N. Murphy, Insolvent Debtor, except such as may be by law exempt from execution, and of all his deeds, vouchers, books of account and papers, and to keep the same safely until the appointment of an Assignee of his estate. All persons are forbidden to pay any debts to the said Insolvent or to deliver any property, belonging to such Insolvent, to him or to any person firm, corporation or association for his use; and the said Debtor is hereby forbidden to transfer or deliver any property, until the further order of this Court, except as herein ordered.

It is further ordered that all the creditors of said debtor be and appear before the Hon. R. F. Crawford, Judge of the Superior Court of the State of California, in and for the County of Sonoma, in open court, at the court-room of said court, in Department No. 2 thereof, at the city of Santa Rosa, in said county of Sonoma, on the 12th day of June, 1893, at 11 o'clock A. M. of that day, to prove their debts and choose one or more Assignees of the estate of said Debtor.

It is further ordered, that the order be published in the Sonoma Index Tribune, a newspaper of general circulation, published in the County of Sonoma, as often as the said paper is published, before the day set for the meeting of creditors.

And it is further ordered, that in the meantime, all proceedings against the said Insolvent be stayed.

R. F. CRAWFORD,
Judge of the Superior Court.

Dated May 8th, 1893.

READ.—SPEAR HEAD possesses more qualities of intrinsic value than any other plug tobacco produced. It is the sweetest, the toughest, the richest. SPEAR HEAD is absolutely, positively and distinctively different in flavor from any other plug tobacco. A trial will convince the most skeptical of this fact. It is the largest seller of any similar shape and style on earth, which proves that it has caught the popular taste and pleases the people. Try it, and participate in the contest for prizes. See that a TIN TAG is on every 10 cent piece of SPEAR HEAD you buy. Send in the tags, no matter how small the quantity.

Very sincerely,
THE P. J. SORG COMPANY, MIDDLETOWN, OHIO.

A list of the people obtaining these prizes in this county will be published in this paper immediately after February 1st, 1894.

The Union depot building at Shellville is being remodeled much after the El Verano depot. This improvement will be of great advantage to the farmers in that vicinity.

Sheriff Sam I. Allen was in town Monday subpoening witnesses in the civil suit of P. H. Thompson, Road Commissioner of Sonoma Road District, vs. Edwin Lord. The case will come up for trial before Judge Crawford on June 8th.

Have you furniture or bedding which you desire repaired? If so read the advertisement of A. Barnes, an experienced upholsterer, who has located on First-street West in this place. His shop is next door to Pinelli's building.

The fruit prospects in Sonoma Valley are very encouraging at the present time. There will be a fine and heavy crop of Royal Ann and Elton cherries. Black Tartarians, however, will be light. Plums, pears, quinces and early Crawford peaches promise well and a heavy yield may be expected. Bartlett pears and late cling peaches will produce a light crop, but the fruit will be of excellent quality.

Mr. C. S. Swift, the pleasant young foreman of the Senator Jones ranch, was in town Saturday. He reports the grain on the above ranch to be the best he has seen this season and he has recently visited five different grain-producing counties in the State. Mr. Swift is from Sacramento county and has had twenty years experience in grain-growing. He has at present twenty-seven men employed, many of whom are engaged in cutting hay.

There will be an election for School Trustee on Friday, June 2nd, to fill the place of Capt. E. P. Cutter, whose terms expires next month. The polls will be open from 9 A. M. to 4 P. M. The election will take place in the public school house, where a meeting of voters will also be held at 2 o'clock for the purpose of getting an expression of opinion on a proposition to vote a tax for the purpose of building an annex to the public school building to be used for High School purposes.

A heavy hail storm visited this valley at an early hour last Tuesday morning and also between 12 and 1 o'clock in the afternoon. Many of the hail stones were as large as buckshot. A peculiar feature about the visitation was the fact that it was preceded and followed by a very warm rain, which lasted several hours, thoroughly soaking the ground. Over half an inch of rain fell. The precipitation, while it may have done some damage to hay already cut, was of great benefit to farmers as a whole.

Baker's new Photo Gallery on Napa street, Sonoma, is now in full blast. Call in and see the pictures. *

Fighting Hard for His Liberty.

C. Galli, one of the men convicted of assault with a deadly weapon for participating in the Italian cutting scrape in this place last Christmas night, has again had his sentence postponed, this time to May 22d. Felecci Clerite and Pietro Ubaldi, the other participants in the affray, are now serving out their sentences—the latter in the County Jail and the former in the State Prison at Folsom. Clerite has two years to serve and Ubaldi 200 days.

Some Potatoes.

John Ludemann, who resides on Second-street East, planted out a potato patch on the 1st of January and on the 1st of the present month he had new potatoes as large as a man's fist. It is not generally known, but is nevertheless a fact, that the soil in and around Sonoma is peculiarly adapted to potato raising. A few years ago potatoes grown in this place were on exhibitation at the Mechanics' Fair any one of which would actually cover a small-sized dinner plate.

An Escape from the Home.

Frank Burton Clough, 17 years of age, who escaped from the Home for Feeble Minded on the night of May 7th, is still at large. Clough, who is large for his age, speaks indistinctly, has light hair, blue eyes. He was dressed in a brown and gray striped coat and pants and wears a No. 9 shoe. Dr. Osborne will pay all expenses attending the return of the escape should he be recognized from this description and apprehended. The young man, although weak in intellect, is perfectly harmless.

Apportionment of Taxes.

County Recorder Hall, one day this week, made the following apportionment of the second installment of taxes paid to Treasurer Stofen by Sheriff Sam Allen: State fund, $29,739.11; Indigent fund, $3,449.59; Bond fund, $4,599.55; General fund, $16,558.05; School fund, $8,812.65; Road fund, $$11,073.06. Total, $74,235.01. The delinquent taxes amount to $6,201-69. The total amount to be collected, without the railroad tax, being $294,034.28. Amount collected, $287,832.59.

Adelphic Literary Society

The following programme was rendered by the Adelphic Literary Society at the High School yesterday afternoon: Roll call, answer by quotations from Bryant, society; biographical essay "Bryant," Florence Thompson; song, Society; essay, "Life's School," Chas. Pretty independent waists, made of surah and lace, or of any other material entirely different from the skirt, are in great vogue just at present. These waists are sure to have an immense success this year for the country, the seaside and the morning walks. Dark red surah forms a very pretty waist covered with insertings of black passementerie. The balloon [illegible] are of the same, and a belt of passementerie confines it at the waist.

"I don't know of any one thing that impresses me more with the idea of the brotherhood of man," said Mrs. Washtub, "than the universality of the observance of Monday as washday. No matter where a man may live on that day he sees the washing waving; if in the city in his own back yard or from pulley lines from the back windows or on roofs; if in the suburbs, and his work be in the city, in many yards as the train flashes by. If he cross the rivers, he may see on canal boats in tow clotheslines stretched and the home flags flying. We may differ on questions of church or state, but we all agree on Monday as washday.

HIS KNIFE IN THE CONTRIBUTION BOX

How a Salvation Army Man Followed Staff Captain Cox's Exhortation.

"Put your hands down deep in your pockets and pull out all you have in them, even your jackknives," said Staff Captain Blanche Cox at the Princess rink during a Salvation Army meeting one evening during her campaign in the city. She was asking for a collection.

Miss Cox had been telling in her picturesque and entertaining way about army work in India, where the lassies dress and live as the natives do. They eat without other utensils than those primitive implements, the fingers; drink by pouring water from a bowl into their mouths, if they aim straight, down their necks otherwise; sleep on mats laid on the floor and have for bedfellows rats, lizards and other clammy reptiles, and are startled in the night by the howls of wild animals just outside the thin mat doors of the mud huts in which they live. Such a life the staff captain considered a pretty hard thing, but she loved the Lord enough to endure it.

There were tears in many eyes when Miss Cox told how, amid such hardships, there were those who remained true to their faith, while in this blessed United States there were people backsliding every day for the most trivial of causes. She wondered how many of those who sat before her and professed to be Christians would be willing to give up their all and go to India to work for the salvation of the lowly natives. She thought there would not be many of them, but she suggested, with charming ingenuousness, that while such were the facts those who were in her hearing could help the cause by giving of their substance. She noted the fact that a collection was rather in the nature of a sandbagging operation after the audience had been charged 10 cents a head to get into the rink, but she concluded to pass the tambourines. It was then that she said:

"Put your hands down deep in your pockets and pull out all you have in them, even your jackknives."

There was a substantial looking man with gray hair and sandy red beard who had peered intently through platinum rimmed spectacles at the slender staff captain as she told about her hardships in India. He seemed much affected. When opportunity had afforded, he had given applause. He had, even asked the man next to him to follow suit, so much did his heart grow warm. It was not long before the jingling tambourine, which a lassie was passing for a contribution box, was held in front of him. Down went his hand into his pocket.

A look of surprise and chagrin spread quickly over his face. It was followed by a look of relief. "Thump!" went something heavy into the tambourine. It made the pennies, nickels and dimes dance and jingle. The lassie looked at the contribution interrogatively. He nodded his head, as much as to reply

"Yes, I meant to do it."

The lassie tittered and went on collecting. The man with the sandy red beard had followed the staff captain's advice. He had dropped his jackknife into the contribution box.—Chicago Tribune.

People Who Can't Cry.

One of the most curious facts connected with madness is the utter absence of tears amid the insane. Whatever the form of madness, tears are conspicuous by their absence as much in the depression of melancholy or excitement of mania as in the utter apathy of dementia. If a patient in a lunatic asylum be discovered in tears it will be found that it is one beginning to recover or an emotional outbreak in an epileptic who is scarcely truly insane; while actual insane persons appear to have lost the power of weeping, it is only returning reason which can once more unloose the fountains of their tears. Even when a lunatic is telling one in fervid language how she has been deprived of her children or the outrages that have been perpetrated on her self her eye is never even moist.—New York Press.

One of Nature's Economies.

Birds with long legs always have short tails. Writers on the flight of birds have shown that the only use of a bird's tail is to serve as a rudder during the act of flight. When birds are provided with long legs, these are stretched directly behind when the bird is flying and so act as a sort of rudder. Nature is economical and never provides two organs for the same purpose, so when the long legged birds began to use their legs as steering apparatus nature cut off their tails and made the leg rudder a permanency.—Exchange.

Using Expressive Adjectives.

A Boston young lady, scarcely older than 10 years, had a beautifully colored toadstool pointed out to her in the woods one day. "Yes," she said, "it's rather brilliant, but don't you think it looks a trifle morbid?"—Boston Transcript.

The Buck and the Barbed Wire.

W. C. Green was coming across the country near Hereford, accompanied by others, when he came up with a large buck deer tangled up in the barbed wire of a neighboring fence. His horns were so completely tied up in the wire that it was with difficulty that they were extracted after a bullet had ended his life. He had evidently struggled for many hours to regain his liberty.—Tombstone (A. T.) Prospector.

[illegible] the Weapons.

"I came very near having a duel once," said the congressman to a group of auditors.

"Tell us about it," said they as one man.

"When I was about thirty," he continued, "I hung out my shingle in a small town in a southern state, and being from the north I did not receive at first the agreeable recognition I expected. In fact there was one blatherskite of a fellow who made himself so obnoxious that one day I slapped his jaws. This brought all the respectable people of the community over to my side, and I was feeling pretty good for three or four days, when the bottom was knocked out of it all by my receiving a challenge from Mr. Blatherskite. If there was anything more than another that I didn't want to do it was to fight a duel, and I tried to get out of it some way, but couldn't, and finally accepted his challenge and chose doubled barreled shotguns at ten paces. I didn't hear anything from my man for twenty-four hours, and then I had a personal call from him.

"'I have come in,' he said after a few preliminary remarks, 'to make a statement about this duel. What I've got to say is that shotguns are too doggoned mortuary for me, and if you have no objections I'll apologize and call it square.'

"Then I became very brave and blustered some, but I accepted the situation very gracefully at last, and ever after Mr. Blatherskite was most respectful, and stood about as well in the town as he ever did."—Detroit Free Press.

Why Milk Differs in Quality.

Milk is more susceptible to changes from the normal condition than any other food product. The first class of changes has been brought about by the action of breeders. By many years of attention to breeding for fat production, it is now possible to get milk which may be twice as rich as the normal. On the other hand, other breeders have paid especial attention to production of large quantity, even at the expense of quality, until pure milk is sometimes produced having as low as 10 per cent. of solids, when the normal is 13 per cent.

A second set of causes which influence the quality of milk grows out of the ignorance or carelessness of the producer or seller. Where the persons hold the exploded idea of the value of one cow's milk for children anything in the treatment of the cow which affects its nervous temperament may unfit it for food for very young children. Uncleanliness or neglect is often a grave source of trouble in the handling of milk, not only on account of the possibilities of the addition of visible filth, but because milk is peculiarly susceptible to odor, various kinds of bacteria and disease germs. Epidemics of scarlet fever and typhoid fever have been traceable to the milk supply, unclean cans and other utensils, and particularly to propagating bacteria.—Boston Transcript.

The Vanishing Couple.

A fashion safe to stamp a young girl in general society as but ill equipped with knowledge of good form is that of "vanishing" in company with her attendant after a dance and remaining in unfrequented corners until remark is thereby created. Such is the young woman whose chaperon is [illegible] as to her whereabouts or [illegible] active exercise to find her. She is no doubt often innocent of intention to offend, but at large and mixed entertainments the better part of wisdom in a woman is to keep in view of her fellows.

A witty Frenchwoman, Mme. de Girardin, once wrote: "Amuse yourselves, O young beauties, but flutter your wings in the broad light of day. Avoid shadows in which suspicion hides." The "vanishing woman" act should be limited in performance to a platform in full view of the audience. The prompt return of a young woman to the side or vicinity of her chaperon after dancing is not only a graceful and well bred action, but affords an opportunity to the man, who too often is embarrassed in this respect, to withdraw and fulfill some other engagement.—Ladies' Home Journal.

Monday and Friday.

Those of us who like Friday for various reasons, but chiefly because it leads up to Saturday, upon which day schools are closed, will be pleased to hear that it is not half so unlucky a day as Monday, the day school opens again. A German statistician, feeling that Friday had been a much maligned day, determined to make a scientific investigation of the matter, and found that it is not Friday but Monday that is the most unfortunate of the week days.

According to his investigations 16.74 per cent. of all accidents occur on Monday, 15.51 per cent. on Tuesday, 16.31 per cent. on Wednesday, 15.47 per cent. on Thursday, 16.38 per cent. on Friday, 16.38 per cent. on Saturday and only 2.93 per cent. on Sunday. So you see Friday isn't so bad a day after all.—Harper's Young People.

"German Syrup"

Here is something from Mr. Frank A. Hale, proprietor of the De Witt House, Lewiston, and the Tontine Hotel, Brunswick, Me. Hotel men meet the world as it comes and goes, and are not slow in sizing people and things up for what they are worth. He says that he has lost a father and several brothers and sisters from Pulmonary Consumption, and is himself frequently troubled with colds, and he often coughs enough to make him sick at his stomach. Whenever he has taken a cold of this kind he uses Boschee's German Syrup, and it cures him every time. Here is a man who knows the full danger of lung troubles, and would therefore be most particular as to the medicine he used. What is his opinion? Listen! "I use nothing but Boschee's German Syrup, and have advised, I presume, more than a hundred different persons to take it. They agree with me that it is the best cough syrup in the market." ⑧

KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE.

STAR LAKE CO., OREGON, Feb. 8th, 1892.

DR. B. J. KENDALL CO.,

Dear Sirs:—I have used your KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE for the last twelve years never being without it but a few weeks in that time and I have made several wonderful cures with it. I cured a Curb of long standing. Then I had a four year old colt badly sweenied; tried every thing without any benefit, so I tried your liniment, and in a few weeks he was well and his shoulder filled up all right, and the other, a four year old that had a Thoroughpin and Blood Spavin on the same joint, and to-day no one can tell which leg it was on. These statements can be proven, if necessary; the four year olds are now seven and can be seen any day at Cottage Grove, Or.

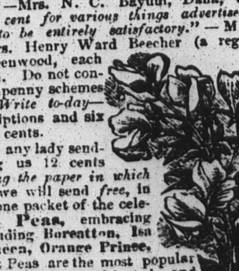
OUR NEW 1893 FLOWER SEED OFFER.

A Magnificent Collection of FLOWER SEEDS 200 Varieties, FREE!

An Unparalleled Offer by an Old-Established and Reliable Publishing House! THE LADIES' WORLD is a large 20-page, 80-column illustrated Magazine for ladies and the family circle. It is devoted to stories, poems, ladies' fancy work, artistic needlework, home decoration, housekeeping, fashions, hygiene, juvenile reading, etiquette, etc. To introduce this charming ladies' paper into 100,000 homes where it is not already taken, we now make the following colossal offer: Upon receipt of only 12 Cents in silver or stamps, we will send The Ladies' World for Three Months, and to each subscriber we will also send Free and postpaid, a large and magnificent Collection of Choice Flower Seeds, two hundred varieties, including Pansies, Verbenas, Chrysanthemums, Asters, Phlox Drummondii, Balsam, Cypress Vine, Stocks, Digitalis, Double Zinnia, Pinks, etc., etc. Remember, twelve cents pays for the magazine three months and this entire magnificent Collection of Choice Flower Seeds, put up by a first-class Seed House and warranted fresh and reliable. No lady can afford to miss this wonderful opportunity. We guarantee every subscriber many times the value of money sent, and will refund your money and make you a present of both seeds and Magazine if you are not satisfied. Ours is an old and reliable publishing house, endorsed by all the leading newspapers. We have received hundreds of testimonials from pleased patrons during the past five years: "I had beautiful flowers from the seeds you sent me two years ago, and from experience know the seeds are exactly as advertised."—Mrs. N. C. Bayum, Dana, Wis. "Myself and friends have sent for various things advertised by you, and have found them to be entirely satisfactory."—M. J. Davis, Brooklyn, N. Y. Mrs. Henry Ward Beecher (a regular subscriber), and Grace Greenwood, each ordered our seeds last season. Do not confound this offer with the catchpenny schemes of unscrupulous persons. Write to-day—don't put it off! Six subscriptions and six Seed Collections sent for 60 cents.

SPECIAL OFFER! To any lady sending us 12 cents for above offer, and naming the paper in which she saw this advertisement, we will send free, in addition to all the above, one packet of the celebrated Eckford Sweet Peas, embracing the newest varieties, including Boreatton, Isa Eckford, Splendor, The Queen, Orange Prince, Apple Blossom, etc. Sweet Peas are the most popular and fashionable bouquet flowers now cultivated, and the Eckford Varieties which we offer, are the largest, finest and most celebrated known. They grow to a height of 6 feet, and produce for three months a continuous profusion of fragrant blooms of the most brilliant coloring.



ANOTHER GREAT OFFER! Upon receipt of Thirty-five Cents (our regular subscription price) we will send The Ladies' World for One Year, together with our magnificent Collection of Choice Flower Seeds above described, likewise one packet of the extensively advertised and justly celebrated Eckford Sweet Peas. Address:

S. H. MOORE & CO., 27 Park Place, New York.
